Letter From Memphis.

MEMPHIS, TENN., JUNE 5, 1904.

EDITOR ADVOCATE,

KIND SIR:—Your letter received—was glad to hear from you. Your paper is always a welcome visitor by which I am kept in touch with the happenings that occur in my old home. It would be a great treat to me to shake hands with my old friends, and enjoy their hospitality. Many of them have passed away since I saw them, and the young people who were children are grown, many of them married, this makes me think I would almost be a stranger.

Was grieved to hear of Henry's death. He was kind and courteous to all and a high toned gentleman. I know of no higher eulogy to pass upon one who was my friend.

I am delighted with my home in the outland. This city is improving rapidly, no more, but a healthy growth. Real estate is advancing, population increasing, and everything points favorably to the making of this, not one of the great cities of the South, but the greatest. Those who follow after my old friend, J. G. Trimble, will verify this statement, bye and bye, as he, by his wisdom, and the aid of his brother Frank, secured valuable property.

Decoration Day was duly and pleasantly represented by the National representatives. The colored people predominated. Their cemetery is eight miles from the city, and kept as Uncle Sam always does everything, in fine order. Something over fourteen thousand are buried there. The Confederate was on the 3rd of June. The day was threatening, but an immense crowd was on hand. The ceremonies were sad and impressive. The prayer offered by Rev. Curry was beautiful, so full of tenderness for the living and hope for the dead. The old veterans were greatly affected, shedding tears, not only they, but most all. The monument was a mass of flowers—magnolia blossoms were distributed in great profusion on the graves, each grave having a flag representing the lost cause. Whilst the war is long since over, still I doubt if those who wore the gray will ever have much love for those who wore the blue.

Politics is a one-sided affair down here—all for the nominees for President. Many think Roosevelt will be beaten—hope so, but have great doubts.

Remember me kindly to old friends. "Summer Con's" letters were read and enjoyed—he is a good fellow, alert, and loyal to friends when awake.

With best wishes for all I am sincerely your friend,

Geo. A. WHITNEY.

Some Facts About the State Democratic Convention.

A sweeping victory right down the line was won in the Democratic State Convention by Gov. J. C. W. Beckham, who was himself elected temporary chairman over the Hon. R. Frank Peak, of Shelby county, by a majority of 495.

Out of 1,139 votes cast, Gov. Beckham received 517, while his opponent received 322. Several counties with an aggregate of thirty-three delegates failed to vote.

By the same overwhelming majority the Hon. Lewis McQuown, of Warren county, the Governor's choice for chairman of State Central and Executive Committee to succeed Allie W. Young, defeated the Hon. James N. Kehoe, of Mason county, who was the candidate of the Blackburn-McCreary and anti-administration forces.

Embraced in the organization report was a new and complete set of rules to govern the Democratic party, while the report recommended for delegates-at-large to the National Convention at St. Louis the following: Gov. J. C. W. Beckham, Congressman Ollie M. James, Senator J. C. S. Blackburn and Senator James B. McCreary. The Hon. Claude M. Thomas, of Bourbon county, and the Hon. Lillard H. Carter, of Anderson county, were named as electors from the State-at-large.

Jack Chinn was defeated for State Central Committee in the Eighth District convention R. W. Miller, of Madison, being elected to succeed him.

Judge James Hargis, of Breathitt county, was re-elected to the State Central Committee from the Tenth District.

The Beckham forces say they were victorious in nearly all the districts, but the anti-Beckham people say they carried the Seventh, Eighth, Ninth and Eleventh Districts.

How to Save Melons, Cucumbers, Etc.

Many gardeners fail in raising cucumbers and melons on account of the ravages of the striped melon bug, diabrotica vittata. The pest is easily controlled. Take four ounces of soap and boil in one quart of water until soap is dissolved. Add four tablespoonful of coal oil. Beat while hot for ten minutes. This quantity will last all summer if put away in a cool place. Take one tablespoonful of the jelly to a bucket of water, stirring well together. Water the vines once or twice a week. This mixture will not injure the most delicate plant and is a perfect insecticide.

Neuralgia Pains.

Are sometimes almost unbearable. Paracamp relieves Neuralgia and Headache instantly by opening the pores, stimulating the circulation and removing the congestion. A free application will convince you of its merits. So don't suffer but keep Paracamp in your home. You need it every day. 46-5t.

FOX-BENTON WEDDING APPROPRIATELY SOLEMNIZED LAST NIGHT.

Bride One of Pine Bluff's Most Popular and Beautiful Young Ladies.

Under a wedding bell of roses, lilies and orange blossoms, with the initials of the bride and groom blazing above them in electric lights, and before an audience that packed the church to the doors and beyond, Miss Allie Lee Fox and Prof. Robert T. Benton were united in marriage last night by Rev. J. L. Caldwell, at the First Presbyterian Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fox, of this city, and the groom is from Mt. Sterling, Ky., and is one of the most popular teachers of Pine Bluff's public schools.

The altar was most beautifully decorated with palms, and a lattice-work of pink and white ribbons, while floral wedding bells hung from three arches of green leaves and flowers, the one under which the contracting parties stood being larger than the others and particularly elaborate.

The electrical effects were beautiful and ingenious. Over one gate was the groom's initial "B." and over the other that of the bride, "F." In incandescent lights, and as the ceremony proceeded the "F" was gradually merged into the "B," which, after the marriage vows were exchanged, blazed triumphantly alone.

The wedding party entered the church at the two side aisles, marching to the altar to the strains of a wedding chorus, sung by the church choir, the bride leaning on the arm of her father, and the groom being attended by his best man, Dr. T. C. Edgar. Miss Fox was attended at the altar by her sister, Miss Blanche Fox, as maid of honor.

The bride's maids were Misses Hilda Honnet, Mattie Otto, Emma Dewody, Iola Philpot, Bettie Hlabu, and Annie Newell, all tastefully attired in pink organdie, while the groomsmen were Sam B. Russell, C. M. Nichol, Campbell Fox, Carlton Fox, J. R. Ryland and Prof. E. H. Schloss. Just before the wedding party entered the church, Miss Edgar sang a solo accompanied by the organ.

The ceremony passed without a hitch, and the responses of both bride and groom were distinctly heard all over the church and throughout the large assemblage. After the party left the church to the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, there was tendered them a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

The happy couple left on the mid-night train for Memphis, via Cotton Belt route. They will visit Prof. Benton's family at Mt. Sterling, Ky., and will be gone about a month.

The above is a clipping from the Pine Bluff (Ark.), Morning Courier, of Thursday, June 2.

A Big Circus Coming.

The Great Sells & Downs shows have completed all arrangements to exhibit in Mt. Sterling on Friday, June 17. The Sells & Downs show has advanced rapidly during recent years until it has reached the front rank of tented enterprises, and is one of the biggest on the road. It advertises a greater number of features than any other show, and, judging from the comments of the press, commercial travelers and others who have seen it, the Sells & Downs Show produces all it advertises. With the Sells & Downs Shows from six to eight acts are to be seen at one time, in the three rings, hippodrome track, on the stage, and in mid-air. The management of a show the size of Sells & Downs does not expect the people to be able to watch all of the many features, but they arrange to have several acts of various kinds at the same time, so that the spectator may take his choice and enjoy those that he admires most. Since people's tastes differ, it is necessary for a circus the size of Sells & Downs to be cosmopolitan in character in order that all may be pleased, and those who have seen it know that it pleases and satisfies the most critical.

The Great Sells & Downs Shows will positively appear in Mt. Sterling for one day only, giving two performances on Friday, June 17.

Was Wasting Away.

The following letter from Robt. R. Watts of Salem, Mo., is instructive. "I have been troubled with kidney disease for the last five years. I lost flesh and never felt well and doctored with leading physicians and tried all remedies suggested without relief. Finally I tried Foley's Kidney Cure and less than two bottles completely cured me and I am now sound and well." For sale by W. S. Lloyd. 46-5t.

With the restless charm of beauty, flowers tell of the goodness of God, and birds sing it, and the unburnt stars shine down to testify, and Christ expects us to blend our voices with theirs: "I tell you if these shall hold their peace, the stones will cry out!"

Chronic bronchial troubles and summer coughs can be quickly relieved and cured by Foley's Honey and Tar. For sale by W. S. Lloyd. 46-5t.

ST TEMPER.

I have a little temper;
The like my jolly gray—
Unless I watch it closely,
It tries to get away.
And rear and kick and trample
On all who near it stand;
And so I try to tame it,
And hold it well in hand.
No good to me a snaffle;
I keep a tight curb rein;
And speak to it quite gently
Yet sometimes all in vain.
It is so much the stronger,
It goes away from me;
And I will be its master
Some day, as you shall see.
—A Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Warning.

If you have kidney or bladder trouble and do not use Foley's Kidney Cure, you will have only yourself to blame for results, as it positively cures all forms of kidney and bladder diseases. For sale by W. S. Lloyd. 46-5t.

DEMOCRATIC.

That Louisville State convention was a strictly democratic. Leaders contended valiantly but majorities ruled and minorities were satisfied that their defeat was by the people and they went away ready to work under the leadership named and to contend hard against the common foe.

HON. A. W. YOUNG.

In other columns we print the verbatim speech of Judge A. W. Young before the State convention last week. This is his first publication, it being too much for the great dailies. Mr. Young reviewed the condition of things and showed how it was that from Republican rule Kentucky had been reclaimed by the Democrats. He paid his respects to the Courier-Journal and Times in scathing terms, and retires from this arduous position to continue in the ranks of his party.

Hon. A. W. Young's

Speech Before The Democratic State Convention.

Fellow Democrats:—

I am glad to meet in one assembly Kentucky's representative Democrats and to believe to them in person the Commission that five years ago they first presented me, and which is a full report of my acts and their results. At that time, we were unable to elect a Democratic United States Senator and both places in the upper houses of the Federal Congress were vacant, although I understand one W. J. Delo, from the County of Butler, with deathless devotion and untiring energy drew the per diem "per day" allowed by the law to a United States Senator. We only had four judges on the highest Court in the State. The legislature of your State was Republican and every office upon Capital Square at Frankfort from Governor to Commissioner of Agriculture was filled by Republicans. Confronted by these conditions, every branch of the government in the hands of the Republicans, having been placed there by the bolt of the Courier-Journal, Louisville Times and Louisville Post in 1895 when the State was turned over to Bradley for Governor. Again in 1896, when they helped the Republicans rob the Democrats of the State and turned it over to McKinley against Bryan. They bolted again in '97 and supported Hindman but failed to elect him. The Louisville Dispatch was then ready to bolt. All the largest daily papers in the State against us, no faint heart would have undertaken the battle, but then we had a Napoleon in the person of the murdered dead William Goebel. He buckled on his armor and raised the flag of the common people. Endowed as he was by Nature with the power to look in the faces of men and read their hearts, he knew the motive that moved them and he measured well the power they could wield. He knew when men claimed to be for the Democrats, and yet used every effort to defeat measures that were calculated to insure Democratic success, that they were the name only of one of two purposes, power or greed.

Possessed of this knowledge, he had the conviction of 1899 to endorse the Chicago platform of 1891 although the Courier-Journal had opposed it from its first adoption. He had the convention to approve the Chinn School Book Bill, although the Courier Journal defeated it in the Kentucky Legislature the winter before. He had the convention to endorse the election law, of which he was the author, although daily during the legislature that it was enacted the Courier-Journal and the Times had been as severe in their denunciation of him and his measure as they have been of me. Upon this platform he was nominated, possessing not a single plank, advocated by either of these papers, yet he sought what looked to me as impossibility, their support. His gigantic mind had solved the problem—he had looked into their faces, he turned over to them what they lost in 1896, the organization in the city of Louisville and they in turn supported him, and for the first time in my life I learned what that famous declaration made in 1896, meant "no compromise with dishonor."

Upon every stump in Kentucky, William Goebel proclaimed in that campaign "if I am elected Governor or the legislature should repeal or alter the election law, I will veto that measure sure." Yet his tongue had hardly been silenced, his great brain had hardly ceased to act, the hand that chiseled out this monument of which he was proudest, had scarcely been paralyzed by the assassin's bullet until these same "honorable" gentlemen, who dictated the policy of these "honorable" Democratic papers were demanding in the Lexington Convention that nominated Governor Beckham a declaration in favor of repealing this law. We had to do it or they would bolt. Again they could not compromise with dishonor. Oh, unholy act, when I saw you lay your foul hands upon the monument of my dead friend, whom I loved and trusted and who in turn trusted me, and tear it down as coolly as you would carve meat in your stall, I resolved then that no such vultures should ever by any act of mine come in control of the greatest party on earth in the grandest State beneath the sun.

With the recollection of all this fresh in my mind, I came to Louisville at the request of Governor Beckham in the last campaign, for the purpose of inducing the organization in the City of Louisville to support him for Governor, for I knew he would not turn loose the assassins who had murdered my friend. I found that they were in a plot to defeat him. I then went to see John H. Whisen, for whose Democracy I have the same sort of respect I have for that of the Courier-Journal gang. I found that he was willing to support our ticket provided I would assure him that all Democrats who were candidates before the approaching primary in Louisville, would have a square deal, votes counted for them that were cast and an equal division of the election officers in that primary. This was consented to by Governor Beckham and others in the light. I agreed that every candidate before the primary should have a fair chance and an honest count. When it came to the time that they were to be nominated, I was petitioned by these candidates, twenty-three in number, and also by the Democratic Executive Committee of the City of Louisville to carry out my promise. I invited them to appear before the State Central Committee and present their grievances. They did so and showed that they did not have a single election officer in all the precincts of the City of Louisville; that the Committees then constituted had even refused them admittance in the room where the officers were selected, or even to permit them to know who the officers of the election were. The Committee decided that this was harmful to the party and unjust to the people that submitted their claims to the Democratic party. And they adopted the resolution directing me, as Chairman of the Committee, to see that a fair primary was held, and that every vote that was cast was counted for the man for whom it was cast.

Then it was that I set about to carry out this resolution; then it was that I was threatened by the Courier-Journal if I did so that they would drive me out of political life in Kentucky. Then it was that they threatened Gov. Beckham and the other candidates upon the ticket that if they stood by me and the resolution that was adopted they would defeat them in that election. My friends became alarmed and deserted me in this hour and the Courier-Journal has ever since been trying to carry out its threat. They have given interviews purporting to be with me, published them in their paper, when I was not even in the city and had not seen their correspondents.

During that campaign, I refused to reply to their slanderous attacks, I feared that it might disrupt the party, thereby elect a Republican Governor, who would pardon the murderers of my friend. I bore all of their vituperations and slanderous reports, as many other Democrats have in Kentucky, who have refused to do their bidding and bow to their will. They have even said in their reports that I intended to seat the contesting delegation in the City of Louisville regardless of the right or wrong of it. They claim I made this statement to Governor Beckham. They did this in order to add respectability to the charge, but I say now, in the face of these people, and in the presence of Governor Beckham, this statement was never made, and there is no man here who has the courage to deny that it is false. They have made these charges solely for the purpose of misleading Democrats in the State in order that they may control and plunder the Democratic party, and when it is of value to them, turn it over to the Republicans. They have branded me as a traitor to my party, yet I have never failed to support every one I see since my majority. I am a traitor because I refused to recognize the Palmer Buckner Democrats as the real Democrats of Kentucky. Let's see if I am a traitor.

I stated to you before, the condition of Kentucky when I was placed at the head of the Committee. Now we have two United States Senators, both Democrats. The Legislature of Kentucky overwhelmingly Democratic; five Judges of the Court of Appeals are Democrats and every office upon the Square at Frankfort filled with Democrats from Governor to Commissioner of Agriculture, and Kentucky the last time electing Democrats by nearly 27,000 majority. I am a traitor because this has occurred. I am a traitor to my party because I refused to see Democrats disfranchised in the City of Louisville in order that this crowd may further plunder the people. I propose to return to my humble home and live forever in seclusion, amid the confidence and respect of my neighbors and friends than to have my name taunted in large headlines across this slimy sheet with its columns teeming false praise of my achievements at the expense of my manhood and the life of my party.

KEEPING UP

Proportionate Gain in Uninstructed Vote to St. Louis Convention.

The result of Democratic State Conventions held during the past week continues to show a proportionate gain of uninstructed delegates to the National Democratic Convention at St. Louis. Five conventions were held during the week—Nebraska, Michigan, Oklahoma, Georgia and Wyoming. The first three send their delegates uninstructed, Georgia votes for Parker and Wyoming for Hearst. The total number of delegates selected to the St. Louis convention is 632. Of this number 304, or nearly one-half, are uninstructed. Parker, the leading candidate, has less than one-third of the instructed delegates, with 172. He leads Hearst, who has ninety-eight votes, by seventy-four votes.

The situation up to date, therefore, stands as follows: Uninstructed delegates, 304; for Parker, 173; for Hearst, 98; for Olney, 32. Massachusetts; for Wall, 20, Wisconsin.

With a continuance of the present ratio up to the meeting of the National Convention, the uninstructed delegates combined with those who are instructed for other candidates have the votes necessary to nominate a candidate independently of the Parker vote—160 out of 632, or more than two-thirds.

McGee (L. T.) News, published by Alvin L. Adams and F. E. Bates in a bright little eight page paper. Mr. Adams is a Menefee county boy and son of Ed. J. M. Adams, a brother of Ed. K. P. Adams, of Menefee.

Two promising young ladies of Menefee county won prizes during the commencement just closed at the Hazel Green Academy. Miss Melba Phelps, of Frenchburg, received a watch for obtaining the highest grade, which was a general average of 97, and Miss Esther Ketchum, of Frenchburg, received the first prize for deportment. The watch was given by Hon. W. O. Miller, who gives a like prize every year.

The Italian who was sent up from Morgan Circuit Court at the January term for rape, died a few days since. There is no hope for Snover Walters, who was sent from Wolfe Circuit Court for murder.

Married at the residence of the bride's parents, Judge Steve Tutt and wife, at Campion, Harry Combs and Miss Sally Tutt. Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom were entertained by a party, including Misses Anna Belle Combs and Callie Tutt, left for St. Louis to spend two weeks at the World's Fair.

Robert Day now at El Paso, Texas, says the thermometer stands at about 100 degrees. He attended a ball game in Mexico and said 10,000 people were present. He thinks his health is somewhat improved.

Wife Convinced.

A telephone message from Campion Wednesday stated that Mrs. C. C. Polk died that morning of consumption. A little while before her death she told her husband and others that she felt much better and would live to spend the day at her father's, Judge Tutt, near town.

DEATHS.

JAMES.—Jimmie James died at his home near Hazel Green, on Tuesday night, June 7th, 1904. The burial was on Lucy's Creek on Wednesday afternoon. He was a son of Mrs. Angeline James and grandson of Preston Trimble.

Abner McKinley, a brother of the late President, was found dead in a chair at his home at Somerset, Pa., Saturday morning at 8 o'clock. He had been a sufferer from Bright's disease. Buried at Canton, O., his old home.

GENN.—Mr. Frank Gunn, brother of Prof. H. M. Gunn, this city, died at his home in Lexington on the 7th instant from uric acid poison, after being sick only three days. For years he had been associated with the Phoenix National Bank, and was a most exemplary gentleman.

KING.—Friday morning, June 10th, at 6 o'clock, Mrs. James C. King at the age of sixty five years departed this life. She was the widow of James C. King. She is survived by eight children; Mrs. Sallie Welsh, of Lexington; Misses Mamie, Maggie and Agnes, this city; and Mr. W. King, of Lexington; John F., James P., and A. M., of this city. Funeral services were held at the Catholic Church by Rev. L. DeWageneare where Mrs. King had been a communicant since a child, and burial was in St. Thomas Cemetery. Mrs. King had been in declining health for several months and was well aware that the end was fast approaching and it is said of her that her afflictions were borne heroically, preferring to suffer alone rather than around the loving sympathy of her children. A devoted mother, a kind neighbor has in the death of Mrs. King yielded to the inevitable and an other soul has gone to the God who gave it.

HIXSON BROS.

Sir Knight Henry Jones,

Past Eminent Commander and Pelate of Montgomery Commandery No. 5, K. T., was born April 1st, 1846, and died suddenly in his place of business on Friday morning, May 27, 1904.

He had always resided in this community, leading a quiet uneventful life, full of kindly deeds, which endeared him to many warm friends of all classes. His life was so ordered that while preserving his own dignity and self respect, and discharging his duties as citizen and officer faithfully and without fear, he incurred the ill will of none, and was at the time of his death probably the most universally esteemed citizen of the county. He possessed, and deserved the confidence of his fellow men, and exorted a quiet but wide-spread influence for good among old and young.

He was made a Mason in his early manhood, and filled the highest stations in all the local bodies. Never once in the many years of his Masonic life did he falter in his allegiance to the principles of the institution, which he believed made men "wiser, better, and consequently happier."

We who knew him in the sacred precincts of our asylum, and were associated with him in those bonds of fraternal regard which he ever delighted to recognize, and whose duties and obligations he so earnestly endeavored to impress upon his fraters—we knew his worth and valued his friendship.

In testimony of which he it now, Requiescat! That in his death we suffer an irreparable loss, faithful and efficient as he has ever been in the discharge of his duties as a member and officer of this Commandery. That each of us feels he has lost a personal friend, one ever ready to help the needy or distressed, and whose wise counsel and prudent advice have been so valuable to many of us in time of doubt and difficulty.

Truly he was a Knight "without fear and without reproach," keeping his honor as unsullied as the shining blade he wore, always ready to draw his sword in the cause to which it was consecrated.

Silently and swiftly the message of the Grim Tyrant came, but he did not find him off his guard, and he fell "full knightly with his armor on," and when in the ceremonial of our order the words: "Be ye also ready," shall be pronounced, we will hear the echo of his voice, warning us in death, as in life, to be prepared when the final summons comes to us.

We cherish his memory, so full of the fragrance of gentleness and kindness, as that of one we loved, who has but wrapped the drapery of his couch about him and laid down to pleasant dreams.

We deeply sympathize with the loved ones to whom he was so devotedly attached, and beg them to accept the assurance that their loss is keenly felt by us.

The Recorder is directed to have this report published in the local papers, and furnish a copy to the family of our deceased frater.
